College Home Addition at Irvington Has 58 New Building Lots

Third Lot Sale at Irvington Gives Proof of Town's Progress and Boom...Kenneth Ferry First to Buy a Lot Saturday.

COL. IGLEHART WAS THE AUCTIONEER

The public auction sale Saturday made the thirteenth of May a lucky day for Irvington. Fifty-eight lots were added to the College addition. This is the third successful lot sale put on by Moorman & Akers in less than a year in their home town.

The sale was started by the Hardinsburg brass band at 12:30 a. m. and not a handful of people on the grounds, but in a half an hour or so, after the women had washed dishes and the men had taken their after dinner smokes, the crowd increased and by 2 o'clock, things were moving in a lively fashion.

Col. Iglehart, the auctioneer, opened the sale with a sermon on real-estate, buying land at home and punctuated it with deserved praise, for Dr. Moorman and Mr. Akers, who have promoted every industry to build the town. As he drove from lot to lot the small boys hung on his carriage and got free rides and had their fun while the band played on. Some of the crowd stayed in their buggies and carriages, and followed the auctioneer, but the majority were walking, standing in the boiling hot sun intensely interested to see who was to get next lot or free cash prize.

There were three cash prizes given free, and those who held the winning tickets were: Hubert Livers, one dollar; Alvin Rice, two dollars; Pierce Hardaway, five dollars.

The lots sold as follows: Ken Ferry, $25, 1; D. L. Smith, 36, 2; F. H. McGhee, 34, 2; J. B. Gibson, 64, 2; Jas. Watlington, 70, 2; G. F. Bandy, 114, 4; G. F. Bandy, 127, 50, 5; Jas. Watlington, 30, 2; Daily Miller, 36, 3; J. R. Crenan, 104, 4; H. H. Norton, 168, 3; Earl Bennett, 71, 2; Tito Adkins, 90, 3; J. L. Stith, 105, 5; W. S. Hendry, 31, 50, 3; Mrs. Dick Bandy, 48, 4; Dr. L. B. Moremen, 132, 11.

JOHN IRWIN TAYLOR

To Deliver Valedictory Address at the Commencement of L. T. S.

Invitations have been received to the twenty-second annual commencement of the Louisville Training School which is held next week.

Cadet Lieutenant John Irwin Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Taylor, of Custer, will deliver the valedictory oration. His subject is "Maid of Orleans."

Cadet Robert Carman, of Guston, Ky., will deliver an address. His subject is: "A Hot Axle."

Both of the young men have had splendid careers at college and their host of friends congratulate them.

Officers Initiated.

Bewleyville, May 15.—(Special)—Laura Stith Chapter No. 75, Q. E. S. at Bewleyville conferred the degrees on six candidates Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Elisha Smith, Misses Nannie Hicks, Fannie Hardaway, Margaret Scott, Messrs. Edgar Hardaway and I. R. Hicks. After the initiation, refreshments were served. Misses Ada Stith and Beulah Payne presided at the punch bowls.

Miss Embry III.

Mrs. Chas. Hamman and Mrs. Allen Kingsbury went to Owensboro last week to see Miss Minnie Snyder Embry, who has been critically ill at the home of her aunt, Mrs. John Carson. The friends of this lovely young girl regret to learn of her continued illness, and hope to hear of a decided change for the better in her condition.

Don't throw paper on the street.

ANSLEM A. M'GARY

Dies at the Age of Eighty-eight Years at His Home in Hardinsburg --Was the Tenth Child.

Ansem A. McGary, aged 88, died at his home in Hardinsburg, Friday, May 12, after long suffering from cancer.

He was the last of a family of nine brothers and sisters, all long-lived. He was born near Hardinsburg, and spent his life in the county. For many years he was a farmer near town. He was twice married. His first wife was a Miss Coomes. The second, who survives him, was the widow Ball, a daughter of Elijah Board, one of the county's prominent men in his day. Besides the surviving widow, one daughter, Lelia, Mrs. Lewis, survives the deceased.

Mr. McGary was one of the best of men, attentive strictly to his own affairs, and considerate of every one. No one knew him but to love his gentle character. The interment was in St. Romuald's cemetery Saturday morning.

Mr. Joe Allen III.

Joe Allen has been confined at his home for three weeks suffering of typhoid fever. The friends and family of Mr. Allen trust that he will soon be better.

Delegates To Owensboro

Mrs. William Glen Hardaway was elected the delegate from the Methodist Woman's Missionary Society's annual meeting at Owensboro, June 8. Mrs. Wickliffe DeHaven was elected as reserved delegate. There is a movement on foot to invite the meeting here next year.

BOYD LOCKARD

Former Cloverport Boy Making Good in California--Connected With Blythe City's Industries.

B. D. Lockard and John R. Dutcher, of Blythe City, were in Los Angeles during the past week, ordering machinery for an ice factory, creamery and electric light plant for the Palo Verde city.

Mr. Lockard said yesterday that the three plants, which would be built by the Blythe City Ice and Cold Storage Company, would cost about $40,000.

"Blythe City is growing at a wonderful rate," said Mr. Lockard, "and there is a great future for the city and the entire valley. The fifteen-mile irrigation canal is nearing completion, and the Glavis branch of the Southern Pacific, for which a bonus of $100,000 has been raised, will enter Blythe City not later than eighteen months hence.

"Two thousand acres of cotton will be planted in the vicinity of Rannels, and a cotton gin will be built at Blythe City.

"The Palo Verde Land and Water Company, of which W. F. Holt is general manager, is pushing extensive improvements on its tract of 25,000 acres. The company has appointed the Palo Verde-Blythe Land and Town Company of Los Angeles, as the exclusive selling agents for the big tract.—Los Angeles Examiner.

COURT NOTES AND HARDINSBURG NEWS

Twenty-five Young People Apply For Diplomas-Teachers' Examination Held Next Week—Seven Indictments Returned.

NEWS NOTES AND PERSONALS

Mrs. Herbert Hall returned last week from a two weeks visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Pate.

Twenty-five applicants for diplomas of graduation from the common school course were before the Board of Examiners Friday and Saturday. The examination was conducted at Hardinsburg by Supt. Driskell and Examiner Raleigh Meador, who has recently been appointed to succeed C. M. Payne, resigned. Arthur Ater had a few applicants at Irvington, where he was in charge.

Produce is our Hobby. Cash or trade.—C. D. Payne.

Charley Beard returned Friday from Southwest New Mexico, where he had been on a two weeks prospecting trip. He purchased a farm to which he expects to move next fall.

For Dental work see Dr. Walker.

Mrs. Josie Jolly, of Hawesville, came Friday for a few days visit to friends.

I want to swap $500 worth of shoes for cash in the next 60 days, so get my prices; too low to quote.—C. D. Payne.

Messrs. Finley Miller, Claude Mercer, Dr. Lex and Judge Ahl went to Louisville Saturday to see the Derby.

Mrs. O. C. Woolfolk and son, Master William Griffin, returned to Louisville Saturday after a two weeks visit to relatives.

Mrs. G. B. Beard went to Louisville Saturday for a few days visit.

Compare my prices with any one who sells on 12 months time and see what you can do.—C. D. Payne.

Miss Emma Ahl spent Saturday and Sunday in Louisville.

Taylor Beard has accepted a position as druggist with Dr. Lex.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Hook went to Louisville Saturday for a few days.

Teachers' examination next Friday and Saturday.

Give me $1.50 and take a bbl of salt. Don't pay a Credit House $1.75 for the same goods.—C. D. Payne.

Judge Moss, of Bowling Green, left Saturday to preside at one of his own courts. Judge Birkhead, of Owensboro, is presiding this week.

The High School will give a play at the City Hall Friday night of this week. Mrs. Blanche Read is conducting the rehearsals; a guarantee that the pupils will be well drilled.

On Monday night of next week diplomas will be awarded to the graduates of the public school course. There are four who passed in January. The twenty-five applicants last week will swell the number to a goodly class.

Dr. Mather, of Marion, Ky., will deliver the address.

School closes Friday.

Aretus Pavker, colored, who died in New Albany, Ind., was buried here Sunday.

"Bread baking success is guaranteed if you use the Lewisport BEST Flour." Sold by J. H. Gardner.

Court Notes.

The grand jury returned seven indictments Friday before adjourning to meet again.

The seven indictments returned Friday are all set for trial Friday of this week. This is unusual, as indictments returned at one court are generally tried at the next or even later.

There were no civil cases tried last week, and a part of the Commonwealth's docket was set over for this week.

The cases that consumed most of the time last week were the Commonwealth vs. J. C. Brodie who is charged with shooting at another, and the Commonwealth vs. O. P. Chancellor, charged with embezzlement. The Brodie case resulted in a hung jury. Chancellor was cleared.

Both the grand and petit juries are composed of safe, sound, reasonable men—fine bodies from whom no man could fear an injustice.

HN ICEBERG in the midst of the Sahara desert would be no greater phenomenon than a single cotton thread in our assortment of Kirschbaum Clothes

We could sell clothes that cost us less. But we couldn't build a good reputation that way. We must sell you clothes that will wear, hold their shape, always look well. They must be made right, from absolutely all-wool fabrics.

Kirschbaum Clothes have 50 years of highest tailoring-reputation behind them. We're safe in selling them and you're safe in buying them.

Yet the prices, $15 to $30, are remarkably low considering the quality. We have such a variety of models, fabrics and colors in two and three-piece suits, raincoats and topcoats that you can't fail to find yours here.

The Kirschbaum Fancy Worsted Suits at $21 have all the points of superiority that make the Kirschbaum Clothes the best and finest made.

Always look for the Kirschbaum label—it guarantees satisfaction.

conditions of the Poor House property, to repair said property, and contract for same, and to make addition to buildings deemed necessary in their discretion. Said motion carried and is made the order of the court. Whereupon C. M. Heston and Judge Wm Ahl were appointed by the court and they are hereby ordered and directed to immediately inspect conditions at the county Poor House, and they are authorized to make contracts for necessary repairs and to erect any additional building if necessary, advertise said work to be done and the Commissioner and receiver is authorized to borrow the money for said work and pay for same when completed, and said work not to exceed $600.

It is ordered that Dennis Sheeran, S. B. C., pay to Wm. Ahl, Commissioner and receiver, the amount of county taxes collected by him on a judgment against the Ohio Valley Tie Co., less penalties and commission, and the Commissioner and Receiver will credit same to the general expense and emergency fund.

It is ordered that the claim of T. J. Hook be allowed (itemized) $80.15

This day came J. R. Eskridge and J. P. Haswell, Jr., a committee heretofore appointed to examine the Assessors books and correct erroneous assessments and errors and filed the following report, which is in words and figures as follows, to-wit:

We, J. R. Eskridge and J. P. Haswell, Jr., commissioners heretofore appointed by this court to examine the assessors books and to report upon the property that is twice assessed and erroneously assessed, beg leave to submit the following report: Your committee examined carefully the entire assessors book and compared it with the sheriff tax book, page by page; we also added each page of the assessors book, and the recapitulation, sheets also we find numerous, and grave errors throughout the entire book, so that it was impracticable and impossible to accurately arrive at the total amount of property assessed for taxation as of September 1, 1900. The errors in assessment that we are sure about, are as follows:

In the First district we find that Heston, Whitworth & Co. are assessed at $16,400 when the assessment should have been $1,640 which makes an erroneous charge against the sheriff of taxes upon $14,760. The Second district we find to be practically correct, except we find that the Breckinridge Bank is assessed at $47,982 under the judgment of the quarterly court enter-

Recapitulation

First District: Heston, Whitworth & Co.	$14,760
Bank of Hardinsburg & Trust Co.	7,016
Farmers Bank	5,000
Second District: Breckinridge Bank	1,872
Third District	19,528
Fourth District: E. H. Shelman & Co.	29,573
First State Bank	9,714

Sixth District: Bank of Glen Dean
2,617
$90,080.

Credit by amount sheriff should have been charged with against the Bank of Cloverport $1,557, which leaves a net erroneous assessment of $88,723. The county taxes on $88,723 at 43 cents amounts to $381.51. The school tax on $88,723 less $515, amount of property in the district which pays no school tax leaving a total of $88,208, on which school tax is paid amounts to $176.42.

The amount of property on which railroad tax is paid $29.313, the tax on same at 30 cents amounts to $88.18.

We recommend that the sheriff be refunded these several amounts. It further appearing that Heston, Whitworth & Co. and the bank herein mentioned paid their taxes on the corrected assessments herein stated and therefore not entitled any refund.

Respectfully submitted,
Jesse R. Eskridge
John P. Haswell, Jr.

It is now ordered by the court that said report be and the same is now adopted and confirmed, and ordered to record, and it is further ordered that John P. Haswell, Jr., commissioner for the railroad tax district, pay to Dennis Sheeran, sheriff, on funds belonging to said district, taxes on $29.313 at the rate of 30 cents which is erroneously assessed amounting to $88.18 and it is further ordered that Andrew Driskell, Superintendent, pay to Dennis Sheeran, sheriff, the taxes on $88.208 at the rate of 20 cents which has erroneously assessed, amounting to $176.20.

It is further ordered that Judge Wm. Ahl, Commissioner and Receiver of this court, pay to Dennis Sheeran, sheriff, the taxes on $88,723 at the rate of 43 cents which was erroneously assessed amounting to the sum of $381.51.

H. M. Beard, two claims allowed, (itemized) $150. Minutes read and approved.

NEWS FROM SHREVE.

Business men say that the ability to gain the attention is often the secret of success in life.

Miss Eva Butler, who has been attending school at Dundee, is spending vacation at home.

Mrs. Ruth Dewees is confined to her room with the measles.

Mrs. Nora Dowell, after a long and severe illness, is able to be out again.

Mrs. Annie Barch and little daughter, Rebecca, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Rebarber last Sunday.

Mrs. Ora Davison, of Glaton, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Shreve, last week.

Business at this place has been very good this season; really better than was expected.

Miss Irene Whittinghill, one of Ohio county's most popular school-teachers, is spending her vacation at her home near this place.

Mrs. Chas. Davison has returned from Calhoun, where she has been at the bedside of her brother, John Payne, who is very ill with pneumonia. He is a little better, though his friends entertain very little hope of his recovery.

Miss Bessie Spencer has a most painful protuberance on her foot, which has baffled the skill of several physicians.

Mrs. Rosa Wallace, of Narrows, is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Burch this week. She is accompanied by her little son, Bryan.

Ola Duff, of Dundee, was the guest of Miss Irene Whittinghill Sunday.

Dr. D. H. Godsey and wife and Mrs. Craven made a pleasant visit to Fordsville.

T. E. Butler is very much improved in health. He has 500 acres in cultivation, and is able to personally superintend it.

Rev. Corley preached Mrs. Sarah Oldham's funeral Sunday at Pleasant Grove church. There was quite a large crowd out.

Russel Walker has returned home. Mrs. Lee Stone is visiting relatives at Olaton this week.

Dennis Walker, of Fordsville, was a guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Walker.

Anderson Davison sent a wagon-load of fat hogs to market last week.

Miss Fannie Whittinghill, of Hartford, spent last week at home.

The farmers in this section are not through plowing corn, owing to the late spring.

W. A. Lloyd and family have moved back to their farm from Owensboro, where they have been living for about a year.

Mrs. Lou Dewees, of Fordsville, is the guest of her son, Lee Dewees.

For Governor.

We are authorized to announce JAS. B. McCREARY as a candidate for Governor of Kentucky subject to the action of the Democratic primary election May 27.

"The only fellows who accomplish great tasks are the ones who desire to accomplish them." This was truly illustrated by Moremen & Akers in their lot sale at Irvington last Saturday. This was a remarkable sale, and it showed what men can do when they will, and have the nerve and the desire. What a man feels and wills he can do if he is honest and conscientious. He can make people feel his way and come over. People like to move along with successful men. Towns are built just this way by the enthusiasm and initiative of just a few.

The Supreme Court of the United States handed down a decision Monday declaring that the Standard Oil Company and its nineteen subsidiary corporations were a conspiracy and a combination in restraint of trade, and ordered that the combination must be dissolved within six months. The court was unanimous as to the main features of the decision.

It is the statement and restatement of a fundamental truth about your business, what your articles can do, their price, their quality and the service offered that pays in advertising. If you have something to sell don't be afraid to tell people about it. The way to reach the people of this county is through the Breckenridge News.

Corn planted before the heavy rains is reported not coming up, and the cut-worms are cutting down that which is up. Several farmers are plowing up and replanting. Tobacco plants are reported in a bad condition. Rain is needed.

There seems to be very little interest in the Democratic primary in this county. Farmers are too busy planting corn, and the politicians are saying nothing.

The independent Democrats in this county are all failing into line, and will vote in the primary. This looks good to us.

What's the matter with the ice plant? Tons of ice down there and people starving for it. Get a move on gentlemen.

The Mother's Day services at the Methodist church Sunday were sweet and impressive.

The man who never changes his opinion is the man who never enlarges his information.

Read the proceedings of the Fiscal Court and see where your money is going.

Democrats ought to get busy in this county and whoop up the primary.

How is that back yard of yours? Is it clean?

It's wise to smile when other folks don't.

LITTLE STORIES WRITTEN

The Seeds Of A Drug Store.

Around the drug stores of most towns here is usually a place—either outside or inside—that might be called a garden spot for men gossipers, and the tales that will not take root and grow there, will never come up! Cloverport's drug stores in this respect are unlike those of other towns, and in them the seed of business and social gossip or scandal have never been permitted to be sown by idle talkers. The druggists themselves have been cautious in their quiet, firm way to keep the right atmosphere within their walls. Nearly forty years Mr. Fisher has been in the drug business in Cloverport, and women and children feel as free to "wait a while" in his store as they do in their own home. In many towns to even pass "the corner drug store" is unpleasant, especially for women. They naturally imagine that those sitting on the bench might drop a personal remark about them. "I heard it at the drug store" is a common expression of men in some communities.

The barber shop, sometimes, is the happy meeting place for idle talkers, but the day is here when the barbershops, the drug stores and the stations are being lifted to higher planes. The proprietors are placing good reading matter in their establishments for those who have to wait and are doing everything in their power to keep pace with

A fellow, or cause any gladness to cloy,
It's a pretty good plan to forget it.

A Mistaken Idea.

If a man walks two squares with a girl twice and calls on her once, there are some people who start the report that the man is in love with the girl and that she is "crazy" about him. Such remarks often spoil an enjoyable friendship between young people and they get so disgusted and annoyed by the round of talk that they feel compelled to drop their relationship with each other. A girl should not get the idea that every man who sees her society is in love with her and the man who thinks that a girl is in love with him because she is nice to him, is a fool. The sooner boys and girls—and the older men and women and the meddlers—cease talking about "cases" and "love affairs," and encourage friendships, the happier will be the social life of young people.

Pretty Ohio Home.

Our good friend, Mrs. Francis Thompson, has returned from a visit to her brother, John S. Thompson, near Waynesville, Ohio. She and her grandson, Lodie Bernard, were there six weeks. Mr. Thompson has a fine farm and his home is as nice as the nicest home in Cloverport. Mrs. Thompson said she did not have a thing to do while there. Sleep, eat and smoke her pipe was her daily program, but some evenings she would slip out to the milk pen and milk the cows. There they use a cream separator. "I wouldn't have one if a person would give it to me," said Mrs. Thompson, "it is too hard to keep clean." They are in such a hurry to get the cream that they cannot wait for it to come to the top. They use the separator, then spend so much time cleaning it. "They make good butter, but the milk is so poor and blue it is not fit to drink," said Mrs. Thompson. She concluded that most of us are so anxious to get the cream of life that we cannot wait for things to take their natural course. "We get the cream and ruin the milk."

THE COUNTRY MINISTER

Some Suggestions Towards Betterment Of Existing Conditions In Rural Parishes

In a discussion of "The Plight of the Country Minister," Rev. A. A. MacKenzie offers the following suggestions toward a solution of the problem:

1.—That the country minister should have a house and a fixed salary of not less than $1,000 a year.
2.—Our rich men, instead of giving the whole of their surplus wealth for the endowment of universities and the establishing of libraries, all of which go to cities and towns, should divert a portion of it to the endowment of the country churches of their own denominations. James Baird, the Scottish mine owner gave half a million pounds sterling to endow the smaller parishes of the church of Scotland, and, largely as a result of this munificence, almost every Scottish village or country district, no matter how weak financially, has well established religious services. American millionaires may well come to the rescue of the American country church, or if Christianity shall cease to be a power in the lives of our farmers, there is a serious outlook for the nation. Were a church that pays $500 annually endowed so that another $500 would be available, a capable pastor could be secured; one who could afford to stay.

3.—Should our rich man fail to do so great a work, let every denomination raise a sustentation fund for its country churches, such as was raised by Dr. Chalmers when the Free church of Scotland left the Established church.

The objection to the last two suggestions is that where there are two or three rival churches in a small community, it would be a waste of money to provide an endowment for them all, or to support them all from sustentation funds.

4.—The different boards in charge of the country churches should come together and make a combined effort to put an end to the divisions which are the prime cause of the miserable condition of so many of the country communities.

5.—The country churches should be managed by a central board representative of the various denominations. The filling of vacancies should not be left to local officials. The "voluntary principal," dear to so many in other lands, has proved a failure so far as our rural work is concerned. A pastor should be sent to the country church for a certain number of years, as is done by the Roman Catholics and Methodists, who have no vacant churches in the country.

THINGS TO FORGET.

If you see a tall fellow ahead of a crowd, A leader of men, marching fearless and proud,

And you know of a tale whose mere telling aloud

Would cause his proud head to in anguish be bowed,

It's a pretty good plan to forget it.

If you know of a skeleton hidden away In a closet, and guarded, and kept from the day

In the dark; and whose showing, whose sudden display

Would cause grief and sorrow and life long dismay,

It's a pretty good plan to forget it.

If you know of a thing that will darken the joy

Of a man or a woman, a girl or a boy,

That will wipe out a smile or the least way annoy

COTTON BLOSSOM

Floating Theatre Will Visit Cloverport Next Monday, May 22.

Playgoers in this county have a great treat in store shortly when Ralph Emerson presents the Cotton Blossom Show Boat at the local wharf Monday evening, May 22, in the great four act comedy drama, "A Woman's Revenge."

Nature offers no prettier pictures than those drawn by the author, and it is said an artist could not portray in a more striking manner the several impersonations than does the excellent company which has been selected by Mr. Emerson to present this popular drama.

High Class Vaudeville, as up-to date as the last tick of the clock will be introduced between the acts. Special attention is called to the great death defying glass water tank escape, of "Mighty Oaks," the highest priced act ever carried on a show boat.

Clean up your pavements.

Charlie Evans, of Washington, D. C. The marriage will take place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nat Raitt, in Cincinnati, tomorrow. Miss Raitt is not expected home for several weeks. During her absence her sister, Miss Josie Raitt, will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pierce.

Help Nature keep Cloverport the prettiest place in the world.

Only a little cold in the head may be the beginning of an obstinate case of Nasal Catarrh. Drive out the invader with Ely's Cream Balm applied straight to the inflamed stuffed up air-passages. Price 50c. If you prefer to use an atomizer, ask for Liquid Cream Balm. It has all the good qualities of the solid form of this remedy and will rid you of catarrh or hay fever. No cocaine to breed a dreadful habit. No mercury to dry out the secretion. Price 75c., with spraying tube. All druggists, or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren Street, New York.

If the fence spoils the looks of your place, take it down.

The New Stone Crusher.

The grading of the switch to the new plant of the Webster Stone Company, near Irvington, was finished Monday. Ties and rails are being put down, and trains will be running in there with the equipment for the plant. This will be one of the big industries of the county when under full headway.

DATES CHANGED FOR SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

The Sunday School Convention to be held at Hardinsburg June 1 and 2, instead of June 2 and 3, as previously announced. We are putting forth a special effort to make this a representative convention. We urge each Sunday School in the county to appoint two delegates who will go to Hardinsburg and represent them at this convention.

We are also making a special plea to the superintendents to at-

To Breeders and Shippers of Sheep

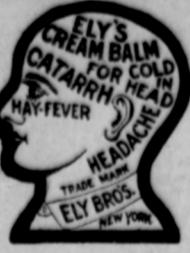

OWNERS of Sheep are hereby notified not to move sheep from farms upon which they are now located, without a Certificate of Inspection. EVERY SHEEP IN Breckinridge County must be dipped before they can be sold and shipped from this county. Shippers will not buy sheep that have not been dipped, so if you want to sell your lambs you must dip your entire flock at once. When a shipper buys a load of sheep he must furnish me name of party from whom purchased and the number in each lot, and if said sheep have been dipped, a certificate will be issued to shipper and said certificate must be attached to bill of lading. Farmers and shippers writing for information or certificates must enclose stamps for reply.

Industry and Livestock Sanitary Board of Kentucky and must be strictly complied with; and there are no exceptions or ways of escape and the order means what it says and will be carried out by me. These are my positive orders and I add the above that the breeders and dealers may appreciate the seriousness of the matter; if there are any changes, I will give notice.

MUSHROOM CORNS
Most Painful of All Foot Ailments.
How to Cure Them.

The Mushroom corn is so called from its pitted cone top, resembling a tiny mushroom. It burrows deep into the toe and gets more inflamed than other corns. For the quick relief and cure of these and all corns and callouses the following is the most effective remedy known to science: Dissolve 2 tablespoonsfuls of Calocide compound in a basin of hot water. Soak the feet in this for full fifteen minutes, gently massaging the sore parts. (Less time will not give desired results.) All soreness instantly disappears and the corn or callous can be easily peeled off. It may be necessary to repeat this for a number of nights for a complete cure, but if adhered to it will surely succeed. A little olive oil rubbed on the part is very beneficial. This Calocide is a very remarkable preparation for all foot ailments and is no longer confined to doctors' use. Any druggist has it in stock or will quickly get it from his wholesale house. A twenty-five cent package is usually sufficient to put the worst feet in fine condition. Bad smelling feet and tender feet need only a few treatments, likewise with inflamed bunions. This item will be welcomed by persons who have tried ineffectual powders and tablets.

THEY ALL DEMAND IT

Cloverport Like Every City And Town In The Union, Receives It.

People with kidney ills want to be cured. When one suffers the tortures of an aching back, relief is eagerly sought for. There are many remedies to-day that relieve, but do not cure. Doan's Kidney Pills have cured thousands. Here is proof:

Pleasant A. Scruggs, of 725 Hathaway St., Owensboro, Ky., says: "For two years I was afflicted with kidney trouble. I suffered severely from pains in the small of my back which were greatly aggravated when stooping or lifting. I could obtain no rest and consequently arose in the morning feeling so lame and tired that it was hard for me to get around. I felt languid and nervous and the least exertion tired me. Headaches and dizzy spells also added to my affliction and I was annoyed by spots appearing before my eyes. The kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and caused me to arise at night. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a box and in about a week I was relieved. I continued taking this remedy until I was completely cured."

LOUISVILLE MARKET

Prices Lower On Hogs-Cattle Good; Active Demand And Prices Firm- Spring Lambs Steady At $6.75

WOOL MARKET VERY QUIET.

Louisville, May 15.—Cattle—The receipts of cattle to-day were 1,333 head; there was a good attendance of local traders and butchers on the yards this morning, but few out-of-town buyers; there was a pretty good active demand for choice light-weight butcher cattle and everything of that description changed hands readily at steady to firm prices; some salesman thought they got a little more money in some instances; the medium and common kinds and heavy cattle were slow and barely steady; the feeder and stocker market was quiet, just about steady; bulls slow; canners dull; milk cows unchanged; prime heavy cattle were slow sale and just about steady. The pens were well cleared; market closed quiet.

Quotations:—Prime export steers 5-40 @ 5.65; shipping steers 5. @ 5.40; beef steers 3.75 @ 5.50; fat heifers 4. @ 4.50; fat cows 3.75 @ 4.85; cutters 2.50 @ 3.75; canners 1.50 @ 2.50; feeders 4.50 @ 3.50; stockers 3.50 @ 5.25; bulls 2.50 @ 4.75; choice milk cows 35. @ 45; common to fair 15 @ 35.

Calves—Receipts 79; the market ruled steady; bulk of the best 6 @ 6 1/2 c; some fancy higher; medium 5 @ 6 c; common to fair 15 @ 35.

Hogs—Receipts 2,611; the market ruled slow and 5¢ lower; selected hogs all weights, selling at 6.25, with the roughs out at 5.5¢ down; the pens were well cleared and the market closed steady at the decline.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts 2,445; the market ruled just about steady; quiet a few spring lambs here and the quality was good; the bulk of the best 6 1/2 @ 6 1/2 c; medium and cull lambs 4 1/2 and 6 1/2 c; choice fat wool sheep 3 1/2 and 3 3/4 c; medium and common sheep extremely slow sale at 1 and 3 c; stock sheep not wanted.

Wool—The market is very quiet and declining. Louisville dealers are paying the following prices: Kentucky, Tennessee and Southern Indiana clear merchantable white grease wool 19 and 20¢, according to quality and section of country; burly wool 10 and 15¢ according to burrs; black wool 15¢ to 16¢; dead sheep and seedy wool 16¢ to 16 1/2¢; merino 16¢ to 17¢; tub-washed 26¢ to 30¢. Southern wool 2¢ to 3¢ lower. Wool

Photograph Cows.

The photograph, through the ingenuity of a couple of boys in Wisconsin, has become a thing of usefulness as well as amusement. After the novelty had worn off the boys had cast aside the "canned" songs and funny talks and gone back to checkers. But they found that doing the chores seriously interfered with the game. One of them remembered that they could talk into the records and have the talk come out just like it went in. So between moves each called into the machine, "Come, boss; come, boss." Then they put the phonograph out facing the pasture and turned it loose. The cows came home.

CHAPTER XIV.

WE did not move until the princess had risen, which she did almost immediately. There was a flush upon her face as she retired. I could read in it a look of triumph, but I think no one else there could tell whether she was pleased or not at the turn things had taken. The moment the curtains had fallen behind her the priests moved away in procession, their chief looking at me for a moment almost as if I had increased his wisdom, but he left me without speaking. Then several knights, my friends, gathered round me. I had their good will, but I noted that I had not converted a single one who was avowedly opposed to me. They crossed to Count Vasca, and he smiled. So we stood in two parties upon the platform.

"The rabble is easily moved, Sir Verrall," he said contemptuously.

He passed down the steps and across the hall, followed by more than half the knights who had stood round the princess.

"The people shouted 'Sir Verrall,' but not all," said a knight beside me. "We will go with you to your quarters."

"I thank you, gentlemen. I would willingly keep my life a little, since I have so much to do in it."

From a shadow a lady stepped suddenly—the Lady Aldrida.

"By your leave I would speak with Sir Verrall."

She came close to me, and there was that in her face that made me look at her hands. They were empty, hanging at her side.

That she was agitated need hardly be stated. Our conversation was hurried, but every word she uttered showed that she felt I had played her wrongfully. In conclusion she said:

"You shall regret the friendship, Sir Verrall. You may escape the swords of your enemies, but I will so contrive that you shall not escape my vengeance. It is a dangerous thing to play with such a woman as I am."

She moved away from me, and the knights came to my side again.

She laughed bitterly.

"Guard him well, gentlemen, if you would keep him. I do not envy you so false a friend."

We were leaving the hall when Jasas met us. Two of the princess' guards were with him.

"Her highness commands your presence, Sir Verrall," he said.

"Her highness thinks I need protection," I said to my comrades. "It will save you the trouble of seeing me to my quarters. We are of one mind. Is it not so? Each one of us holds his life as naught beside the safety of the princess."

I turned and went with Jasas through the hall and along the maze of corridors which led to the secret entrance to the princess' apartment. The priest and I entered.

The princess was alone and rose to meet me. I would have knelt to kiss her hand, but she would not let me. I raised her hand to my lips as I stood instead.

"It was bravely done, but why put off your going for three days?" she asked.

"Are you so anxious for me to be gone?"

"Nay, but three days is a long time. Much may happen in it."

"I had almost hoped that much might happen," I answered softly.

She looked at me, and then her eyes fell. I have ever understood that it is a good sign with women.

"You led me to hope so when we parted last night," I said. "I made a confession which I shall never make to any other woman. I grant it might have angered you, yet it seemed not to do so."

"Indeed, I was not angry."

"And now?"

"Now I think only of your safety, though I doubt whether you are not going to greater danger in Yadasara. But three days give opportunity to your enemies. They could watch for you. You must not wait. You must go tonight. Within your prison—and she pointed to the room where I had been nursed so tenderly—you will find a peasant's dress. Your man O'Ryan says that so it will be safest for you to go, and I trust his wit. Jasas, send one of the guards to attend the knight. Return quickly, Sir Verrall, for midnight will not be long in coming."

I was not long in returning to her dressed in my peasant's garb, but I retained my sword. Jasas did not come back to the princess with me. The priest had quick understanding, for which I was duly thankful.

"Sit by me," she said. "I would not let you go if there were any other way. But there is none, for the door which leads to the world beyond is a secret one."

"But if I find the key?"

"If it is the only way open, I—" "Yes?"

"You may ask me again if I will come."

"Be sure I shall not return to that other world alone."

She let her hand rest lightly on my arm, but I fancied there was a soft caress in it.

"And be sure I shall think well before I answer. Ah, no, do not speak words will not convince me. I have had leisure to note how much value there is in words."

"You are thinking of the Lady Aldrida?"

She smiled. "Perhaps. Is it strange, since you loved her first?"

"I never loved her. It was your treatment of me that made me seem to. Your cold reception stung me, although I had no right to expect any other, and when a man loves he grows desperate. You cared nothing for me."

BE SURE I SHALL NOT RETURN TO THAT OTHER WORLD ALONE.

and, fool that I was, I tried to make you believe that I cared nothing for you."

"And, in truth, you succeeded."

"Why did you receive me so coldly? I looked for gladness in your eyes after the tournament."

"I had a secret to keep."

"Even then?" I asked.

"The princess could have smiled; the woman dared not. I was afraid of you, of myself, of all the world."

"Do you still doubt me?"

"I am waiting to be convinced."

"Lady Aldrida came to me after the council and accused me of being false," I said. "She spoke most bitterly."

"And you soothed her?"

"I fear not. I told her that imagination had played too great a part with her and that I had said no more to her than many others had done and will do again to so pretty a lady."

"And she left you amicably?"

The princess started.

"She cannot harm me," I said. "Today has proved my friends, and they have sworn to protect your highness."

"I have no fear. What do you fear for me?"

"Because I love you I fear all things. Do you know that it is whispered in the city that I seek to become a king in Drusenland?"

"Who whispers it?"

"I know not who started it, but I heard it when I first entered the hall today, and Lady Aldrida had heard it, for she said prying eyes might look into even the princess' garden."

She turned sharply as if expecting to find that we were being watched now. "It is well that you go tonight," she said suddenly.

"You regret what you said last night?" I asked. "Perhaps, for your sake, it would be well if I did not return."

"I do not regret. I have said you must return."

I could not answer her, for Jasas entered.

"All is in readiness, your highness."

"We will come. Leave us a moment. You will depart by a secret way, Sir Verrall, by a door which opens into the woods that touch the outer walls. The woods lie along the spur of the hill, so that you will pass the camp unnoticed. Two good horses await you, and for the rest your wit must serve. Go warily, for my sake. It may chance that it would be convenient to return secretly; there is the key."

"Indeed, I was not angry."

"And now?"

"Now I think only of your safety, though I doubt whether you are not going to greater danger in Yadasara. But three days give opportunity to your enemies. They could watch for you. You must not wait. You must go tonight. Within your prison—and she pointed to the room where I had been nursed so tenderly—you will find a peasant's dress. Your man O'Ryan says that so it will be safest for you to go, and I trust his wit. Jasas, send one of the guards to attend the knight. Return quickly, Sir Verrall, for midnight will not be long in coming."

Her hand was in mine, and so we stood looking into each other's eyes.

"Will you believe me when I say I love you, and only you?"

She did not answer.

"Once you angrily reclaimed the handkerchief I thought you had given me. Will you give me your handkerchief now?"

"Must you have something for remembrance?"

"Not for remembrance, but when I return and show the token and make an humble petition you, perchance, may grant it."

Her handkerchief was in my hand.

"The next time I petition it shall be for myself," I said.

"I think—" she began, and the clasp of our hands tightened, and her arm touched mine, and her hair brushed my cheek. "I think—I fear I shall easily grant that request. Go warily. Come, claim it quickly."

Eye to eye, heart to heart, were we almost. Her face was raised to mine. I questioned her with a look, and how she answered I hardly know. But she did answer, for my arms stole round her and our lips met. A warm glow came into her face, a love-light into her eyes, almost a sob into her breath.

It was a sweet surrender. It was a moment of delirious triumph for me. Then it was gone. Very gently she disengaged herself from my embrace.

"Now go," she said.

CHAPTER XV.

LEFT her. No word could be spoken after such a farewell. In an outer room Jasas and O'Ryan were waiting for me.

"We will go at once," said the priest.

O'Ryan and I followed him from the room and down endless corridors and passages.

He led us a score of yards from the secret door through the walls, and there was one of the princess' guards with two horses. We mounted at once. I raised my cap, and O'Ryan and I moved forward. We proceeded on the level for some distance and then the path dipped. It was a steep descent, and we had much work to keep our horses on their feet. But the trees gradually thinned, and presently we emerged from the wood.

O'Ryan stood for a few moments taking his bearings.

"Straight before us, Verrall," he whispered. "We'll put as much ground behind us as possible before dawn."

"You know why I am going to Yadasara, I suppose?" I said presently.

"Faith, because the other place has got too hot to hold you."

"I still have a mission."

"The same one?" he asked.

"Yes, I shall return and attempt to lead the princess' forces against Yadasara."

"And the treasure finding comes afterward, I presume?" said O'Ryan.

"Precisely."

"It's a mighty pretty program, but it'll want some doing. I doubt not we'll get into the city somehow, but we shall not get out of it so easily. You'll find women with keys to back doors there."

At the first streak of dawn we stopped to rest the animals at a stream and found comfort in a drink of wine from a flask O'Ryan had provided him self with.

Presently, away on our right, I saw the great rock rising up in the light of the early morning. The sun rose higher. O'Ryan reined in his horse. We were hidden in the wood.

"From here we'll make straight for the bridge. See, it is yonder, and they keep a sharp watch. Ride leisurely. One thing more. Remember, you're not a knight—you're just a bumble soldier of fortune, willing to serve the king for what pay he can afford to promise you—and, remember, I am a captain in the king's army and little deference would be a good thing. You might call me captain pretty often. You can very well do it in that dress, and the more importance I can show the better for our enterprise and safety. Now come."

"Do you understand that this is the king?" said a courier, angry at my answer, and evidently wishing to see his master's favor.

"I do, my lord, and I remember that I am a man."

"It seems we have two ready tongues near us," the king said, rather pleased at the discomfiture of his companion.

"What is your name?"

"Clinton," I answered.

"England."

"They rear good men in England," said the king to those about him.

"Captain O'Ryan says you have great strength."

"I do not boast of it, your majesty."

"Do you think you are as strong as I am?"

"Your majesty is seated—it is difficult to judge."

"Now!" said the king, rising and squaring his shoulders.

"Your majesty is well knit; but I should not fear to try my strength against yours."

"That is spoken like a man. You shall, Costa."

The Spaniard came forward, bowing.

"Stand stiff, man. Move, and I shall let you fall. You'll fall heavily enough."

The king grasped him in the back with one hand and very steadily raised him above his head. He held him there for a few moments and then, giving a cry to warn him, threw him forward.

"Bravo, bravo!" said the little knot of courtiers, and then they laughed.

"What is it?" he called as he came.

"Faith, here's two blockheads swearing they don't know Dennis O'Ryan—Captain Dennis O'Ryan. You know him well enough if you're Costa, and you should be by your face."

"O'Ryan!" he exclaimed.

"Why aren't you dead? Everybody said you were, so you ought to be."

I smiled—the answer was so prompt.

"So much for fame," said O'Ryan.

"Call your captain and ask him."

But the captain, hearing the alteration, came out, followed by half a dozen troopers from a small building at the other end of the bridge. The river was not so wide at this point as it was by the city.

"What is it?" he called as he came.

"Faith, here's two blockheads swearing they don't know Dennis O'Ryan—Captain Dennis O'Ryan. You know him well enough if you're Costa, and you should be by your face."

"Now!" said the king, rising and squaring his shoulders.

"I would not let the story wait. I'll tell it to the king."

"Dismount and thrown down your arms so you can cross the bridge."

"You'll bring me to the king?"

"I wouldn't relish it of your tile for me."

Everybody's wrong, though why I'm not dead is more than I can tell. I'm from prison. They finished the troop I set out with, but I've brought back a recruit who'll count for something. Let the tale wait. I'll tell it to the king."

LATEST CHAPTER IN THE CONFLICT BETWEEN CAPITAL AND LABOR FORCES

Arrests For Los Angeles
Dynamiting Either Solve
a Terrible Crime

Or Else a Dastardly Plot
Has Been Framed Up
Against Innocent Men

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

THIS arrest of John J. McNamara, secretary-treasurer of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers; of his brother, James B. McNamara, and of Ortie E. McManigal on the charge of being implicated in the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times building is of worldwide interest because of the magnitude of the crime and the prominence of one of the accused and is of far greater importance as one more chapter in the struggle between capital and labor. Officers of the National Erectors' association and their partisans say that that is but one of a long series of destructive explosions for which McNamara and his confederates are responsible. Representatives of union labor retort that the whole case is a "frameup" similar to that against Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone and is one more attempt of organized capital to discredit organized labor. In such a wide diversity of opinion the only thing the average citizen can do is to wait for the evidence.

McNamara and his friends complain of the manner of his arrest. They say he had no chance to consult an attorney or protect his rights. He had no opportunity to oppose extradition and was taken from his home to a far distant state without time to arrange his affairs or bid goodbye to his family. This is pointed out as a further parallel to the Moyer-Haywood affair. If the case against McNamara is a good one, say the labor men, why such unusual measures?

The Los Angeles Times office was blown up early in the morning of Oct. 1, 1910. More than twenty persons lost their lives. The paper and General Harrison Gray Otis, its proprietor, immediately charged that the crime had been committed by members of union labor. For years the Times had been making a fight for the "open shop" and had incurred the enmity of the trade unions. Immense rewards were offered for the perpetrators of the deed. Various stories came out to the effect that the dynamite to blow up the building had been conveyed in a boat, the name of which had been changed; that three men were concerned in the matter, which three men were given different names in the various accounts. As a proof of the charge that the explosion was caused by some infernal machine the fact was cited that a bomb was found in the vicinity of General Otis' home and another near the house of the secretary of the Commercial club, who had been supporting the Times in its fight for the "open shop."

Union Labor's Side.

Against these stories it was urged that the explosion in the Times office was probably caused by defective gas mains and that the bombs found were planted by the police and enemies of labor, who announced in advance that they expected to find an infernal machine near the home of General Otis; furthermore, even if labor officials were so depraved as to do this deed they would not have been such fools, since they must have known that the previous fight between themselves and the Times would subject them to suspicion.

Investigations were immediately set on foot, and the police and private detective agencies began work on the case. An official finding declared that the explosion was caused by dynamite and implicated three men of the name of Bryce, Schmidt and Kaplan. It is now claimed that "Bryce" is an alias of J. B. McNamara.

One of the private detectives brought into the case was William J. Burns, who became famous as a member of the government secret service and afterward helped to cinch the Oregon land thieves and to expose Schmitz and Ruef in San Francisco. As a sleuth Burns has Sherlock Holmes looking like a cheap Conan Doyle imitation. Holmes may come back, but Burns never goes away. He is always on the job.

McNamara a Man of Force.

John J. McNamara, whom Burns charges with being the head and brains of a country wide conspiracy to blow up nonunion buildings and bridges and who is now under arrest for participation in the dynamiting of the Los Angeles Times and in the resultant killing of twenty-one persons, is a comparatively young man, who has borne a good name among his associates. He started as an ironworker, joined the union, went up by leaps and bounds, has held his present high position for many years and was in line for the presidency of his organization. McNamara has a strong and not unpleasant face, a good forehead, eyes wide apart, prominent features, aquiline nose, thin lips and a good chin. He looks like a man of capacity and force and has anything but the appearance of a criminal. His younger brother, who is charged with the actual blowing up of the Times, has a weaker face. A former bookkeeper of the Ironworkers' union is reported to have said that it was this younger brother who planned the dynamite campaign and inveigled John J. into it. McManigal, who is not charged with direct participation in the Times affair, but who is accused of having caused a later explosion in Los Angeles, is said to have confessed to a series of crimes done at the instigation of McNamara that make those of Harry Orchard look like mere boy pranks in comparison.

One former labor man with whom I recently talked held a rather startling view of the affair. He feared the charge was true. His theory was that the union felt itself whipped unless it adopted heroic measures. The structural iron workers are rough men, fearless of danger. They have to be to follow such a calling. They work nearly always in imminent peril of life, crawling like spiders over the framework of giant skyscrapers, standing on swinging beams at great heights above the earth and facing dangers that would turn the average man dizzy to think about. The motto of these men is rather grousing: "We never die; we are killed." According to this man's view, capital has frequently resorted to the dynamiting of plants owned by rival concerns and has not hesitated to take life in the process. He cited several trusts in support of the statement. He feared that McNamara may have been taking lessons from the trusts. I give this view for what it is worth—it is not my own but is sufficiently striking and plausible to be worth attention.

The Moyer-Haywood Case.

The similarity between the McNamara case and that of Moyer and Haywood extends even to details. Gold miners also have hard and perilous work. McNamara was whisked away to another state in much the same manner as were Moyer and Haywood. In each case a prominent organization of capitalists was closely identified with the prosecution. In each prominent labor union officials were among those accused, and, to make the parallel more striking still, a confederate, Harry Orchard, confessed in the Moyer-Haywood case, just as McManigal is said to have confessed in this.

The three prisoners in the Moyer-Haywood case were these two principals, who were at the time president and secretary respectively of the

"Sure Cure"

"I would like to guide suffering women to a sure cure for female troubles," writes Mrs. R. E. Mercer, of Frozen Camp, W. Va. "I have found no medicine equal to Cardui. I had suffered for about four years. Would have headache for a week at a time, until I would be nearly crazy. I took Cardui and now I never have the headache any more."

ARAB MOUNTS FOR CAVALRY

The War Department May Give Them a Trial.

CROSS WITH THOROUGHBREDS

That Is General Wood's Idea, and He Is Negotiating With Spencer Borden, a Breeder of Arabs—America Far Behind Other Countries In This Respect.

In its anxiety to develop better cavalry mounts for the army the war department is considering giving a trial to Arabs. General Leonard Wood, chief of the general staff, is negotiating with Spencer Borden of Fall River, Mass., a breeder of Arabs.

At the present time the American cavalry is far behind the cavalry of the European armies in the matter of mounts. England, Germany and France have long paid close attention to the breeding of cavalry horses, and especially mounts for officers, with the result that their horses have reached practically perfection for the work asked of them.

When the order came for the troops to go to the Texas border General Wood had to go into the market and purchase at high prices horses for many of the officers ordered to the maneuvers. The horse dealers of Virginia and Maryland reaped a harvest as a result. In one Virginia town $7,000 worth of hunters were sold at prices ranging from $700 to $2,000 each.

The army stud farm already has a good start with a couple of racing stallions presented to the government by August Belmont, but General Wood is anxious to see if an intermingling of the American thoroughbred with the Arab may not produce a good standard cavalry horse.

The ideal of the American army officers is the type of cavalry horse used by English officers. This type is close to the thoroughbred English hunter, which has no exact parallel in this country. It is a bigger, stronger horse than the racing type and much harder in every way.

To supply the army with such horses by purchase would mean an enormous outlay. The animals would have to be purchased from the country at a minimum price of about $600.

Mrs. D. H. Kincheloe, of Madisonville, gave a recital to a large and appreciative audience in the chapel of the school building last Friday evening. Mrs. Kincheloe is too well known as an entertainer to make any comment as to the excellence of her work necessary.

The recital was given under the auspices of the Missionary Society of the Methodist church. Mrs. Kincheloe was introduced by Mrs. Piggott. Mrs. Louis Jolly played the accompaniment in her usual happy style. She also played delightfully two numbers—Schumann's "Whims" and McDowell's "Shadow Dance"—which met with decidedly the heartiest encore of the evening. For an encore she gave "Butterfly" by Grieg. The affair was a success financially and socially.

Your Boy.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

You do not know what there is in him. Bear with him; be patient; wait. Feed him, clothe him, love him. He is a boy, and most boys are bad. You think him so light-hearted and fear he is light-headed as well. But remember he calls you father.

When he played in your lap you fondly hoped he would some day be a great and useful man. Now that he has grown larger and his young blood drives him into gleeful sport and makes him impatient of serious advice—rattling, playful, thoughtless—you almost despair. But don't be snappish and snarlish and make him feel that you were disappointed in him. He is your boy and you are to live in him. He bears your name and is to send it on down the stream of time. He inherits your fortune and fame and is to transmit them to generations to come.

It can not be otherwise. A daughter divides your fortune, transmits less of your fame and loses your name. A boy is more nearly yourself than anything else can be. It is through your boy you go down in history; through your boy you are to live in the future; by him you are to act upon the generation that is to come.

It may be difficult to govern him, but be patient. He may seem averse to everything useful and good; but wait. No one can tell what is in a boy. He may surprise you some day. Hope. Let him grow. While his body grows larger and stronger, his mental and moral nature may expand and improve.

Educate your boy. You may think money spent in that way is money spent in vain; there is nothing in him; he has no pride, no aspiration. You don't know. No one can tell what is in a boy. Besides, there may be an unkindled spark, and unfanned flame, a smouldering fire, a latent energy, develop and direct and thus start your boy going with such energy and determination that no power on earth could stop him short of the topmost round in the ladder of fame.

Resolutions Of Respect.

Whereas, as God in his divine wisdom has seen best to take from Sabbath School one of its brightest jewels, Adele Berry Benton, we herewith offer the following resolutions:

First: Though it is hard to give her up, we as a Sunday School bow in submission to Him who doeth all things well.

Second: We as a Sunday School will strive harder to bring all little ones like her into His fold. May God lay His comforting hand on each wounded heart, He alone can heal.

Third: That a copy of these resolution be recorded on our minutes; one forwarded to the bereaved family and that a copy be published in The Breckenridge News.

Mrs. Glen Hardaway,
Miss Louise Babbage,
Committee.
